Local Great Books Club To Open Season

Do you often complain that the daily routine of your job or household duties seldom lead to developing new ideas or mental stimulation? The Greenbelt Great Books Club may have the answer to your problem.

The first meeting of the new season will be held on Sept. 15 at the residence of Leonard Baron, 19-M Ridge Rd. at 8:15 p.m. with the reading of the Book of Job from the Bible. At its regular bi-monthly meetings trained leaders assist members in discussing great literary works of the ages. Lively controversy is encouraged.

The Great Books Foundation, with headquarters in Chicago, sponsors groups throughout the country, recommending and publishing selected works to be studied in various years. This season the Great Books Club of Greenbelt plans to follow the third year list of readings.

Among the works and authors to be sampled in addition to The Book of Job are works of Aeschylus, Plato, Aristotle and Rabelais; selections from Voltaire, Rousseau, Shakespeare's "King Lear" and Gibbon and Freud. This variety is designed to suit every literary taste.

Meetings are held the first and third Thursday of the month at homes of members. Anyone interested in participating in this program can obtain further information by calling Mrs. Jeanne Jones, GR. 4-6001 or Mrs. Janet Helm, GR. 4-4378.

Police News Review

Numerous parking complaints are still being registered at the police office. Persons parking in areas assigned to others, and persons parking in no parking areas seem to be the major complaints.

A child and an adult reported dog bites this past week. Reports that juveniles have been gambling at the picnic tables behind the Co-op have also been recorded.

A harmonica valued at $18, was reported lost in the Center. Police have made out a lost and found card on the item.

Some men with small flags were seen in town during the festival. Police questioned the men, who were trying to increase their sales by displaying cards claiming that they were veterans. They were told to leave town.

Some men were reported sleeping in autos behind the old firehouse. When police investigated, the men told them that they were carnival workers who had been driven from their quarters on the carnival grounds by mosquitoes.

Swimmers Win Awards

Several members of the Greenbelt Swim Team took trophies home from the Fifth Annual National Capital Swimming Association's Summer Age Group Novice Meet.

Pete Regala took first place in the 16 and under boy's freestyle and a fourth place in the 16 and under boys' breaststroke. Pete competed against 26 other boys to cop first place and against 17 boys to come in fourth. Taking second place in the 16 and under boys' backstroke in competition with 24 other swimmers, was Tommy Hieber. Eulo (Monk) Regala took fourth place in the boys' 14 and under breaststroke out of 39 entered.

Kendra Keeney took third place in the girls' 12 and under freestyle out of 51 girls entered. Kendra also took second place in the girls' 12 and under backstroke out of 41 girls entered.

A total of six trophies were brought home to Greenbelt by the team, which has been coached all summer by Jack Trudeau.

Mix-up on Charges for New Lakewood Homes Raises Payments by $20-$30

by Isadore J. Parker

Residents of the 104-home Lakewood subdivision were shocked last week by notice from their mortgage-holders of an increase in their monthly payments from $20 to $30. The increase was caused by failure of the loaning agencies to include Greenbelt taxes in the monthly charges, it has been disclosed. According to authoritative sources, the increase includes back taxes due to the city, in addition to future taxes to be put into escrow. Additional charges, such as front-foot benefit payments and a county tax increase, are also involved.

One city official blamed the oversight on the Federal Housing Administration, Interstate Building Association and Weaver Brothers, mortgage holders. "They either ignored or did not recognize the city taxes, when the homes were sold," he declared.

The homes were sold to many citizens on the basis of their ability to pay monthly charges. The new increase is causing many home owners financial difficulties, the News Review was informed. Several drop-outs from the co-op kindergarten were blamed on the increase. However, one local real estate agent canvassed the development for possible clients and was unable to obtain one.

The new homes are placed on county and city tax rolls at six-month intervals. Tax bills from the city were presented to the mortgagees for the first time last month. After back taxes are paid, and one year's taxes placed into the escrow account, the monthly charges will be reduced by that amount, it was learned. It is estimated that the increase in monthly charges will then range from $10 to $20. The front foot benefit charges will remain the same.

Taxes to the city from the Lakewood subdivision is estimated to be about $13,000 a year. The average home pays about $130 a year to the city in taxes, based on the $1.60 tax rate.

Several Lakewood home-owners are organizing a citizens group to explore the situation and will meet next week. Other local groups will be consulted to assist them in understanding and solving the dilemma.

By Russ Greenbaum

Summer vacation may end quietly in other communities but not in Greenbelt, where it closes with a big bang in the form of the annual Festival. Started six years ago by veteran Greenbelter Eli DonBullian (who is still its main sparkplug), it has gained steadily in size and popularity. One reason is that it permits our youngsters to have one last joyous fling before returning to the rigid routine of school.

Their parents, too, are willing to splurge, especially the mothers who keep thinking with unrestrained joy that in a few days the little monsters will be back in school on their teachers' necks for a change. No more constant anguished wails of, "But, mother, I just don't have anything to do!" or "Why don't we go on vacation? Are we poor or something?" (The best answer to the last question is, "Yes! And shut up!")

With the end of such pressures in sight, the Festival lures us all into a big blow-out. And this year the managers and organizers put on a bang-up show that will be hard to top in future years. With clever new ideas like the baby crawling contest, the one chance each year to see the hidden talent in our community as well as the cream of our lovely teenage girls, and the convenience of being able to ride on real amusement park rides right in our own back yard (once you get over the first shock of the inflated prices), it was the rare resident who did not find some pleasure in the Festival.

This year we had two distinctive features. One was the helicopter rides sponsored by Twin Pines, which proved more popular than anyone had anticipated. Even at four bucks a whirl, the line was so long that the wait was 30 minutes to an hour for the three-minute ride. I am sure this must prove something, but one can only speculate - perhaps our great civic pride which gave people the desire to see our community spread before them, or the fact that Greenbelters are an adventurous lot, willing to try anything.

The other great event was the dazzling Festival parade on Labor Day morning produced by S/F/C Austin Green. With imagination and careful planning, he gave us a parade that was satisfyingly long but rarely boring. Lively bands and marching units, colorful floats including skilfully decorated bicycles, and high-stepping majorettes, made it a memorable parade. The fact that the Festival parade draws participants from all over the area emphasizes the prestige of the Festival in our neighboring communities and also the aggressive promotion work of S/F/C Green. Congratulations to him and to the many other participants in the Festival who worked hard and long hours to put on a wonderful show for their friends and neighbors.

Neither the News Review nor its editor intend to show any partisanship in the coming national election. All campaign literature goes into the waste basket unopened. One letter we opened, however, with the return address of The Philip Lesly Co., Chicago, Illinois, was boldly stamped "News." It turned out to be a juicy tid-bit for those editors presumably supporting Vice President Nixon. As an intriguing example of campaign publicity, I give this item to you in its entirety:

"His daughters, Tricia and Julie, have learned to play the accordion and their teacher, Marvin Conn of Washington, D. C., has written and dedicated a composition, 'Jitterbug Rock,' in their honor which they enjoy very much."

(If we were The New Yorker magazine, I would add the comment, "Yes, but how do Dick and Pat feel about it?")

Zola - Rosenzweig

Miss Verna Zola, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Zola of Langley Park, was married on Sunday, Sept. 4 to Richard S. Rosenzweig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Rosenzweig, 4-E Crescent. The marriage was performed by Rabbi Harry Silverstone at Drum Point, Md.

The bride was dressed in a white lace gown. Her finger-tipped veil was held together by a tiara of rhinestones. The bride's maid of honor was her sister, Sandra Zola. Phyllis Rosenzweig, the groom's sister was a junior bridesmaid.

Serving the groom as best man was his brother, Martin, and his ushers included brothers, Ira and Michael, and the bride's brother, Arthur.

After a honeymoon trip to Williamsburg, Va., the couple will reside in Silver Spring.

Registrations for classes are still being accepted. Call registrar Rosenzweig, GR. 4-4655.

High Holidays at JCC

The Jewish Community Center of Prince Georges County will observe the High Holidays at its building on Ridge Road and Westway in Greenbelt. Rosh Hashonah services will begin at 6:30 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 21, and go through Friday, Sept. 23.

Yom Kippur observances will start at 6:15 p.m. with the Kol Nidre on Friday, Sept. 30, and go through Saturday, Oct. 1. Information may be obtained from Dalis, GR. 4-5811.

He was Director of Education at Isaiah Israel in Chicago and Adas Israel in Washington, and for the seventh year is the Principal of the Sunday School at the Montgomery County Jewish Community Center.

Enjoyment of Music

By Warren Leddick

The universal love of beauty underlies many forms of recreational activities. It is closely associated with the desire to create, a desire which finds its highest fulfillment in beautiful forms. Beauty of landscape, scenery of unusual grandeur, works of art, poetry, stage designs, and outstanding architecture are among the most commonly understood mediums through which man's yearning for beauty finds gratification. But the grace and rhythm of the athlete, the dancer, and the skater, the sheer beauty of certain passages in orchestral and vocal compositions, the possibility afforded by collecting articles of unusual line, form, color, and texture, and the still greater satisfaction which comes from shaping these objects with one's own hand illustrate the part beauty plays in many recreational activities. The lure of travel and the enjoyment of large park and forest areas are due in large measure to the opportunities they afford for seeing and enjoying places of unusual beauty. The satisfaction of this love of beauty is one of the primary functions of the art museum and the botanical garden.

It was because he saw the endless possibilities which recreation affords that Lorado Taft, the great artist, had a passion to help people "find recreation in the love and study of beauty." The failure of many recreational agencies to appreciate and serve this universal human desire accounts in part for the fact that their programs have not elicited a more favorable response from the public. The motion picture theater, on the other hand, has been alert to satisfy this desire by bringing to the people pictures portraying natural scenery of supreme beauty, handsome, well-dressed actors, buildings, gardens, and home interiors of quality and luxury, and other objects of beauty which their own world of reality denies them.

Lutherans to Build

Holy Cross Lutheran Church will interview two more architects this week in their search for an architect to guide them in their building program. This evening at 8 p.m. they will meet with Russell D. Shaeff of Creative Buildings, Inc. Tomorrow evening at 8 p.m. they will meet with Milton J. Prassas, a registered architect from Washington, D. C.

The meetings this week will conclude a series of interviews with five architects. Previously, the members of Holy Cross interviewed the firm of Elliott and MacIntire of Silver Spring, Ronald S. Senseman of Washington, D. C., and Edwin Fugate of Mansell, MacGittigan, Fugate and Rapp of Philadelphia. This latter firm is one of the outstanding firms in church architecture on the East Coast.

The final decision will be made by the congregation at its October meeting. Contracts with the architect will be signed shortly thereafter according to Mr. Bruno Lohrmann, chairman of the architectural committee.

Bishop Sewing Class

Three sewing classes will be offered this year: Basic, to be held on Wednesday mornings, 9-12 a.m., at the Mowatt Methodist Church; Tailoring I, to be held Friday morning at the church; and another Basic course to be offered on Saturday mornings at High Point High School in the Home Economics Room.

Mrs. Grace Smith will be the teacher. Your registration fee of $5.00 must be sent to Mrs. Smith by Sept. 12 at 4407 Beechwood Rd., University Park, Hyattsville, Md. Checks should be made out to the Prince Georges County Board of Adult Education.

Classes will begin Friday, Sept. 16 for a 12-week period. The Wednesday class will begin Sept. 21. For any further information, call Betty Cormack, GR. 4-7249.

Words and Music

By Harry Zubkoff

Lonesome Traveler, by Jack Kerouac, published by McGraw-Hill. Here are the unusual, unique, and completely individual adventures of an observant writer who has made wandering a way of life. Exhilarating, and completely original, Mr. Kerouac tells of his varied experiences before and during the time he was writing the best sellers that have delighted and infuriated the reading public these past years.

He describes the summer he spent as fire lookout in the Cascade Mountains, and his experiences roaming around Mexico. In vigorous and distinctive language, he tells of the days when he was a laborer on the railroads in California, and worked in the galley of a tramp steamer sailing around the coasts of America. He ranges from the lonely mountaintops of the Cascades to the art galleries of Paris.

Few writers today can boast of the wide experience, and accordingly, the wide range of material available to Jack Kerouac.

Parade Chairman S/F/C Austin R. Green did a terrific job of organization. And to the City and the Recreation Department, the Youth Advisory Board, the men, women, children, who worked tirelessly over the Labor Day weekend, many thanks. Your efforts not only helped our

4-H GROUP IN FESTIVAL

The Greenbelt Cloverbells, on stage during the Labor Day Festival, presented the 4-H Club pledge. Darlene McCauley recited the club motto. Janice Barberie explained the club colors. Penny Webster told at what age children may join the club. Linda Hall gave some of the rules, and Patty Coulter mentioned some of the club activities.

Charlotte McCauley introduced Sherie Purdy, a Bowie Senior 4-H Club member, who told of being in the club for six years. She suggested that others join next year. During her six years she has won 107 ribbons and a total of nearly $100 cash. Two of the Cloverbells displayed a string of 80 of her ribbons, and Sherie was wearing a lovely dress that she had made. Some of her future plans include continuing her 4-H Club work and being a leader.

The group also served behind the ice cream bar, taking their turn along with the other groups. Mrs. Zoellner and Mrs. McCauley deserve a lot of praise for their work with the girls.

FAMILY SERVICE GROUP ESTABLISHED IN COUNTY

In keeping with the basic purpose of family counseling, Edward E. D. DiBella, President, has announced the name of the Social Service League of Prince Georges County, Inc. has been changed to Family Service of Prince Georges County, Inc. Family Service, he explained, means that the marriage counselors on the staff, all of whom have their professional degrees in social case-work, serves a family or an individual who have personal problems; such as, marital or parent-child relationship problems, child behavior and development, problems of aged persons in families, and of illness causing family maladjustments, as well as difficulties of household management and budgeting. Pre-marital counseling is also available.

Dr. Joyce Gale Klein, the Executive Director, believes that there is nothing magical about counseling, and the public needs to understand that. "In order to help a husband and wife who have marital conflicts or troubles with relationships to other family members, we invite them to make an appointment with one of our counselors. During this interview, we encourage the couple to explore what their problem really is, how they feel about it, and help them to learn if they have a real motivation to examine their behavior and to change," she added.

Family Service is non-profit, and is supported by the United Givers Fund. Each client receiving counseling help is charged an interview fee, scaled to his income and number of dependents. "This is the only counseling agency in Prince Georges County, and serves persons of all faiths, races and economic status," added Dr. Klein. "We see married students from the University of Maryland, farmers from lower County, government workers, business people and housewives."

If the client and counselor mutually agree that they should continue to work together, regular counseling appointments are established. Sometimes people discover the underlying causes of personal problems within a few interviews. Other situations will be more complex. It may take as long as a year to find a satisfactory solution based on thorough knowledge and understanding of the reasons for the problems.

Family Service vouches for their caseworkers' personal integrity and professional credentials. All consultations are completely confidential.

In order for the community to learn more about Family Service, the Speakers Bureau, under Mrs. Fred Huemmler, First Vice President, will send a speaker without charge to any club, church, civic association, or organization in Prince Georges County. Call WA. 7-1441 for further information.

When The SIREN BLOWS

By Rita Fisher

September 6

A flooded basement on Crescent was the reason for the fire call on September 31. The men were called to help rid the basement of water which had risen to a level of three and a half feet. According to the records, the job was done in an hour and a half.

The men were 10:22'd twice this week on calls from out of town. When the alarm went out from Berwyn Heights on Saturday, our men were called also. But the fire was found to be minor, and the local firemen in the area were able to handle the matter. Again on September 4, but this time at 3:37 a.m. the siren went off three times and fifteen men reported to the fire house. The call came from Glenndale at Belle Meade Rd. and Railroad Avenue. While enroute, again the men were told that the fire was small enough to be controlled by the Glenndale company and they returned to quarters.

A call came in this evening after our supper hour and when my husband went out the door, I realized that he can no longer run down to the firehouse on foot. So out I ran and got into the car with him and rode down to the new house to check on the call in case it might turn out to be a "big one." Turned out to be a call from 62 court Ridge. A power mower had caught fire and was burning enough to consider the mower as a complete loss. The fire did not spread and the men were back in quarters in a short time.

The Rescue Squad stood by at the NBTA competitions at the Armory on August 27 and logged 15 cases of first aid and no transports made. Most of the first aid was required for abrasions and bee stings.

On August 29, the men carried a woman from Plateau to Washington Hospital Center who had stepped on a nail. On the 30th, a man who was having dizzy spells and fainting was carried from the pool locker room to his home on Northway.

A woman who was suffering from a possible overdose of medicine or was in insulin shock was carried to the Washington Sanitarium on Sept. 1. Oxygen was administered enroute.

On September 3, a man was carried from his home on Crescent to Prince Georges Hospital. He had had chills and was throwing up. A little 13 month old boy cut his finger on a beer can on Greentree Place and the men were called. The bleeding had stopped but the child was carried to P. G. Hospital for an anti-tetanus shot. On September 4 a little boy living on Ridge stuck a bobby pin in a wall socket. Although he was not injured seriously, he received burns on both hands. The men applied a Foille dressing and a transport was not necessary.

In case you are wondering where the ambulance was going during the parade, here's the dope. A pregnant woman from Ardmore, Md. fainted and the men rushed to the Center near the post office and carried the woman to P. G. Hospital. A person having convulsions was carried from Gardenway and Crescent to his (or her) home on Forestway.

And last, but not least, a call came in this morning at 3:25 a.m. from a woman on Laurel Hill who was having labor pains. It was decided, after the Rescue Squad arrived, that she was not quite ready to go to the hospital. Hum.

Question and Answers About The Hatch Act

Because of the current political campaigns, many questions are raised with respect to specific provisions of the Hatch Act, which restricts political activity on the part of Federal employees and certain State and local government employees. The Civil Service Commission, which is responsible for Hatch Act enforcement, has prepared answers to questions most often asked concerning political-activity restrictions.

Part I: General Restrictions

Q. What groups of employees are prohibited from active participation in politics by the Hatch Act?

A. In general, employees of the executive branch of the Federal Government and the Government of the District of Columbia, including temporary and part time employees. Also restricted is the political activity of certain employees of State, county, and municipal agencies that are Federally financed.

Q. What is the penalty for violation of the Hatch Act by a Federal employee?

A. The most severe penalty for violation is removal. The minimum penalty is suspension without pay for 90 days.

Q. I am an employee affected by the Hatch Act. Will you please explain my responsibilities and rights under the act?

A. You have the right to vote and to express your political opinions, but you are forbidden to take an active part in partisan political management or in partisan political campaigns.

Specifically, you cannot run for any office as a party candidate or campaign for any party candidate. You may not run for office, even as an independent, in an election in which partisan political designations are used, unless you live in one of the communities to which the Civil Service Commission has given partial exemption in connection with their local government. (Greenbelt is one of these communities).

You can attend political rallies and join political clubs, but you cannot take an active part in the conduct of the rally or operation of the club. Other things you are prohibited from doing are using your automobile for the purpose of getting voters—other than members of your immediate family—to the polls, distributing campaign material, and selling tickets or otherwise actively promoting such activities as political dinners.

Q. I am subject to the Hatch Act and I want to write a letter to the editor of our local newspaper expressing my opinion on a partisan political issue. Am I allowed to do this?

A. Yes, but you must not solicit votes for or against any political party or candidate. If you solicit votes, it is a Hatch Act violation.

Q. May I make a campaign contribution to my party?

A. Yes, but you cannot be required to do so. The contribution cannot be made in a Federal building or to some other employee who is prohibited by Federal law from accepting contributions. Of course, as a Federal employee you cannot solicit political contributions.

Q. I have been asked to run for public office on a party ticket. Is this permissible under the Hatch Act?

A. No. Federal employees cannot be candidates for any National, State, county, or municipal office filled in partisan elections. You may run for local office only in elections that are nonpartisan, that is, where all the candidates appear on the ballot without party designation.

Q. May I serve as an election official?

A. The Hatch Act prohibits you from running for this office in a partisan election, but permits you to serve as an election official provided you go about your duties in an impartial manner. Under no circumstances can you serve at the polls as a checker, challenger, distributor, or watcher representing a political party, candidate, or faction.

Q. I would like to wear a campaign button in the interests of one of my favorite candidates. Is this permissible?

A. Yes. You may also display political posters or pictures in the windows of your home or on your automobile.

Q. I am a Government employee but my wife isn't. She wants to help a friend campaign for political office. Is that all right?

A. Yes. The act does not restrict the activities of an employee's wife or of other members of his family in any way.

Q. What should I do if I don't know whether a certain action violates the Hatch Act?

A. Since ignorance of provisions of the law will not excuse you from penalties for violation, you should present the matter in writing to the U.S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C.

Part II: Exemptions for Greenbelt Residents

Q. What is the basis for granting partial exemption from Hatch Act restrictions to the residents of certain communities?

A. The partial exemption is granted by the Civil Service Commission, on an individual basis, to communities the majority of whose voters are employed by the Federal Government. The purpose of the exemption is to give these Federal employees a full voice in their local government.

Q. What is the partial exemption?

A. They may participate actively in local political campaigns as independent candidates or in behalf of independent candidates in the communities in which they reside.

Q. How does this differ from the general restriction that applies to all Federal employees?

A. Under the general restriction, a Federal employee cannot run for local office or campaign in an election in which party designations are used. This means that he cannot run in an election, even as an independent, if he is opposed by a partisan political candidate (Republican or Democrat). Neither can he actively work for an independent candidate who is opposed by a party candidate.

In the exempt communities, however, a Federal employee can run for local office against a party candidate as an independent candidate and campaign for a candidate who is running as an independent against a party candidate.

Q. To what extent can the Federal employee campaign for an independent candidate in these communities?

A. He can take an active part in the conduct of rallies and the operation of the independent candidate's "party." He may transport voters to the polls and distribute campaign material. In short, he may do anything in behalf of the independent candidate that he could do in an election if he were not a Federal employee.
